Vancouver Cherry Blossom Festival

While the Vancouver weather forecast calls for 15 – 25 cm of snowfall as a second low pressure system brings snow to the south coast, some residents can't wait for spring to arrive.

Cherry blossoms, daffodils, and tulips are just a few of the spectacular floral features that grace the Lower Mainland during springtime. Not only do these beautiful blooms brighten the region, but they also draw residents out in droves to capture photos of the stunning scenes.

Now, Vancouver Cherry Blossom Festival brings a breathtaking media-arts installation to the city that illuminates cherry blossom trees with vibrant projections.

Festival Lights Illumination invites guests to Stanley Park where Hfour Design Studio media and experiential artists, Stuart James W and Ben Z Cooper, will create a stunning visual experience.
